2. Lisbon: a privileged venue

Enjoying a central location in the western world that once meant the very start of the adventure of discovering the remaining globe by sea, Lisbon is today an extraordinary venue for both its rich history dating back to Roman times and the assumption of modern challenges mirrored by its architecture and cityscape.

Lisbon (Ulixbona), mythically founded by Ulysses on the north bank of one of the biggest world estuaries, is also celebrated for its peculiar light and mild climate which make any trip pleasurable no matter the season.

Late September was chosen for the realisation of the Corpus Vitrearum Forum 2011 as a balanced compromise between the enjoyment of ending summer and the general activity restart after holidays.
